Before designing Primeco Education technology, Behnam led educational programs and later managed operations for a global education organization based in two major US cities. During this seven-year period, Behnam worked personally with tens of thousands participants. He was accountable for expanding customer participation, training program leaders, increasing sales, improving the finance department's efficiency and management of the overall operations for the staff and their team of over 400 volunteers, who together served an annual client base of over 10,000.

Behnam designed the Primeco Education technology in 2001. Since then, he and his team members have helped countless businesses and individuals not only achieve their goals, but to also transform their thinking. His proven methodology is based on his extensive experience in business and human relations.

He is continuing his graduate studies at Penn State University to earn a Master of Science in Organizational Development and Change. From there, Behnam is committed to continuing his graduate studies toward a Doctorate in Industrial and Organizational Psychology. Behnam enjoyed expanding into psychology as an addition to his already strong background in philosophy and ontology. He particularly enjoyed and was inspired by Positive Psychology, and the work of many psychologists who used the Humanistic Psychology approach for empowering and treating their patients. Behnam finds these two psychological approaches very similar to his own work, methodology and approaches.

He is distinguished in his field for delivering outcomes that leave each and every client fulfilled in living their dreams. His rigor ensures that results are produced while his compassion and sense of humor brings play to every working relationship.
